COLLECTION OF TAXES TO BEGIN EARLY IN WEEK

Taxpayers Will Get
Nothing in Monday's Mails.

The collection of Lee county taxes for 1918 will commence next week at the office of County Treasurer W. C. Thompson, to whom the completed books were turned over yesterday by County Clerk Fred Dimick; and every taxpayer in the county should receive in Monday's mail a statement of the taxes due on individual holdings and methods of payment.

The books, completion of which was delayed by tardy certification of tax rates from the State Auditor, were finished this week in the county clerk's office, a large force of assistance being engaged in extending the taxes; and County Treasurer Thompson and his assistants at once commenced preparing the notices to taxpayers. It is now assured these will be ready for the mails Saturday night or Sunday morning, and should reach the consignees Monday.

Mr. Thompson announces he will be ready to receive taxes at his office on Tuesday and every day thereafter. Further announcements concerning collection of dues in the outlying townships will be made later.

Were Due Jan. 1.

Taxes were due Jan. 1, this year, but several things have happened to retard the work of extending them. A full abstract of life taxes has not been available until the last few days and the business of sending out thousands of notices to persons who are residents of the county will serve as the final action before the process of collecting actually begins.

Persons who have not paid their taxes by May 1, will become delinquent. After that, one per cent a month will be attached as a fine for delinquency until June 1, a taxpayer will be made to pay two per cent more than the actual tax if he delays. A law makes it possible for the treasurer to inform the delinquent taxpayer by registered mail of his obligations and the cost of registering a letter will be assessed in addition to the percentage.

All of the delay in recording tax amounts has not been experienced in the offices of the county clerk, whose office is responsible for the extension of taxes. The state tax commission appointed by the governor, in lieu of a board of equalization, has been slow in functioning, probably because of the newness of the undertaking.

Premier's Reply to Wilson is Received

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 27.—The reply of the British and French premiers on the Adriatic question was received today at the state department. It was sent to the White House immediately after being decoded.

State department officials would give no intimation as to the nature of the reply, which was drafted within 24 hours after the premier's had received President Wilson's note. In that note the President adhered to his former position that unless the Adriatic settlement of December 9 was restored in principle he would have to consider withdrawing the peace treaty and the French alliance from the senate.

It was announced that the text of the premier's note would not be made public by the American government. This is being sought. The British government is understood to plan publication of all the exchanges including this latest note, within a few days and officials thought it might be possible that the premiers would consent to simultaneous publication of the latest reply on both sides of the Atlantic.

Summons Came to Him at in Chicago.

Judge Ralph E. Eaton of the Fifteenth judicial district of which Lee county is a part, passed away at St. Luke's hospital in Chicago shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, word of the death of the jurist being received by State's Attorney Harry Edwards late yesterday afternoon.

Judge Eaton was elected to the bench in November of last year to succeed Judge James S. Baume, and had presided at two terms of court. Should he have lived and kept his health he would have presided at the April term of the Lee county circuit court. He was taken ill shortly after his election, suffering from a general nervous breakdown and a few weeks ago his physicians ordered him to give up his judicial duties, his condition having grown rapidly worse and a complication of troubles which followed, giving cause for alarm as to his critical condition.

Specialists were brought into consultation in his case, but his vitality had failed and his condition grew rapidly worse. For many days, his many friends over the circuit knew of his weakened condition and that his recovery was very doubtful.

The body was taken to the family home at Mt. Carroll, where funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be made in the Mt. Carroll cemetery. State's Attorney Edwards will go to Mt. Carroll in the morning to be present at the funeral.

AGREED DECREE AGAINST "BIG" FIVE" SIGNED

Packers Enjoined from Engaging in Other Business.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 27.—The agreed decree under which the "Big Five" packers are forever enjoined from engaging in any line of business other than that of handling meat and produce was filed today in the District of Columbia supreme court.

It was submitted by Attorney General Palmer, who said it "removes the menace of control of unrelated industries by the 'Big Five' and confines their activities in future to the business of distributing meat and its by-products."

Disclaim Any Guilt

Counsel for the packers in a statement to the court said the decree had been agreed to by the defendants "not because of guilt for they have not violated any law; but that the American people may be assured that there is not the remotest possibility of a food monopoly by the packers."

After hearing statements by counsel for the government and the packers, Chief Justice McCoey signed the injunction making effective the agreement.

The decree, which involves reorganization of a great industry with assets of more than $1,000,000,000 and which affects 87 corporations and 49 individuals, results from an agreement between the largest meat packers and the Department of Justice announced last December 18. This agreement was reached after the department at the direction of President Wilson had instituted anti-trust proceedings against the packers in Chicago.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN.

FROM OSTEOPATHS.

Editor Telegraph.—In justice to the health officer, Dr. McNicol wishes to state that the paper report was not exactly correct. The question involved was not when call was made, although he did call after the rash had practically disappeared.

Dr. Trowbridge and myself who are at present the only physicians in Dixon holding an osteopathic state license called on the city council to make the following inquiry:

First.—If it was the duty, or at least customary for the city health officer to accept the diagnoses of the physician in charge and proceed to notify the chief of police to placard the house. If this was customary as we were informed it was we wanted to know on what grounds we as osteopathic physicians were being discriminated against.

Second.—We also wanted to know if when the city health officer called in his official capacity what right he had to belittle the treatment given or derogatory statements, which have absolutely no foundation in fact, against the physician in charge, providing that physician holds a state license and has a perfect right under the law to handle such cases. The council informed us that as far as they knew he had no such right.

The statements among others which the health officer made: "That we cannot handle such cases. That we are not allowed to sign death certificates is certainly far from being correct. It would seem a part of wisdom for an officer representing as he does the citizens of Dixon in its health department to write the state authorities for the facts before instead of after making such statements to our patients. This question did come up some time ago as to our rights to sign death certificates here in Illinois. I have in my office the Supreme court decision in what is called the Gage case, which was delivered by Justice Frank K. Dunn, April 13th, 1917. I quote from this:

He says: "That a physician is one versed in or practicing the art of medicine. The term 'medicine' is not limited to substances supposed to possess curative or remedial properties, but has also the meaning of the healing art—the science of preserving health and treating diseases for the purposes of cure—whether such treatment involves the use of medical substances or not."

"The state authorizes osteopathic physicians to treat human ailments.—Under such authority they may treat cases of pneumonia, gastritis, rheumatism, paralysis and other diseases. An examination is required before the certificate of authority is issued and it is only on the theory that the examination shows the person to be qualified that the certificate authorizing the treatment of such ailments can be issued."

On down further it says: "It would be a peculiar provision of the law that would authorize a physician to treat the disease but not to certify the death."

In regard to my diagnoses of the case mentioned in last night's paper: I do not claim to be infallible. I am willing to let the public judge for themselves. Below I submit a signed statement by the parents of a list of the symptoms which are typical upon which I based my diagnoses of Scarlatina before reporting in this particular case. I have had complete charge of patient, seeing him daily for the first ten days. He has not only had the itching which follows the rash but also the fine desquamation (peeling off) also characteristic with a fever after the initial sickness of from 101 to 102 for at least ten days.

Since the health officer has refused so far to diagnose this case we would like to know what the boy had?

Seeing this case from the start as I did I am very positive as to the correctness of my diagnoses, but even in case of doubt the case should be decided in favor of the public health as two boys from this home attend the public school. While I have no authority the parents to date have accepted my diagnoses and so far have kept the children out of school.

This is not a personal matter but one we as osteopaths feel concerns us as a profession. Our license specifically states that we can practice "according to the tenets of our school," and as physicians qualified under the law we propose to sign not only death, but birth certificates, and if the attorney general or the American Medical association or their representatives care to question that right we have decided to fight it out in the courts again if that is deemed necessary.

Had not been feeling well for a week or more before Feb. 13.

February 13th came home before the noon hour having vomited after leaving school. This vomiting continued most of the afternoon.

After supper of the same day when I was called found fever of nearly 103, headache, with scarlet rash over chest. Next morning this had spread to practically the whole body.

The boy had a sore and inflamed throat, and as the rash disappeared complained of itching.

The Strawberry tongue and the rash of the roof of the mouth was also very plainly evident.

Fever after the first day remained around 101 to 102 up until this was written, Feb. 18th.

Signed—
MR. and MRS. OLIVER HOOVER.
The original of this is at my office. My diagnoses was Scarlatina.

Thought Man Was Crazy

"I have suffered from stomach and liver trouble for years; the last two years people have been calling me crazy. The doctors could not do anything for me. The awful bloating of gas seemed to press against my brain and I could not think clearly. Three months ago a friend advised taking May's Wonderful Remedy and it has worked wonders in my case. All my bloating and suffering is gone and I feel as though newly born. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists, everywhere."

To The Men Who Are Raising Hogs

We all remember "Uncle Bill", who for many years after the invention of the mowers continued to cut his own "Horse Hay" with a scythe and rake it by hand because he was opposed to progress and believed that the newfangled ways made hay unfit for "horse feed."

But machinery increasing the amount of work that one man could do won the day.

So it is with the Modern Big Type Poland China, the one hog with the long intestinal tract, the one that stands up on strong legs and stays up while being fitted for the market.

The Pure Bred Poland China of known ancestry and inherited ability to turn high priced feed into choice cuts of meats at a profit, are just as far ahead, when it comes to economical production of pork, as the mowers and layloaders are ahead of the scythe and the hand rake.

Increased production and better livestock is the key to the present situation of high land values and high cost of labor.

I am offering you the best chance of the year to buy a Pure Bred Poland China sow bred to one of my Superior Type Boars.

This is my second sale this season and will be a bargain sale because the high average of my last sale will lead many of my farmer friends to think there is no use to come. All but five of my last sale offering were shipped away and went to breeders. This is the indication of the calibre of my herd, but the breeders do not buy many late ones and only the outstanding ones which leave 80 to 90 per cent for farmer trade and means just a little more than market price. In fact, if I can't interest my farmer friends I will have a hard job to sell all of this offering for more than market price.

In this sale will be four daughters of "Mable's Jumbo," the largest hog in the world, bred to Hill Den Clan, the best son of the Clansman of the 1919 crop. Also the first prize Lee County pig, Club Gilt, and she is a real one, bred to Prospect Jumbo, who is a laming big son of the largest hog in the world.

Better count your brood sows and see if you haven't room for one or two more good ones.

A lot of us have been convinced that Pure Bred Poland Chinas are better. How? By trying them alongside of other hogs.

The Poland China is the only strictly American breed of hogs. What can't Americans make better than other fellows can make? Wish I could talk with you personally about these hogs.

COME TO MY SALE, SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1920, in the Live Stock Sales Pavilion in DIXON, just one block from the I. C. Depot and three blocks from the Northwestern on the street car line.

Free lunch at noon. Sale to start immediately after.

I will be looking for you. Write or telephone for catalogue.

THURSDAY READING CIRCLE—

Mrs. Herbert Scott was hostess on Thursday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Thursday Reading Circle, held at her residence. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Robert Anderson, the secretary, Mrs. Corbin, presided. Current events were given by the members in response to roll call. Several delightful selections on the Victrola were enjoyed. Mrs. Redesch had the principal paper of the afternoon, telling of the honey-bee, its habits, and commercial importance, which has been greatly increased within the past few years by the improvement in the construction of the beehives which allows the extraction of honey at any time without disturbing the bees. That the older bees bring in the pollen and nectar while the younger bees, (all females) prepare the waxen cells was an interesting item in the article. Other papers on the same subject were given by Mesdames Cortright, Bunnell, Glick, and Sterling. After the program a social hour was enjoyed, with the hostess serving delicious refreshments. Mrs. J. W. Watts assisted in the pouring. Washington hatchets were given as favors.

BIRTHDAY DINNER PARTY—

The dinner party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoberg in honor of the latter's birthday was a most delightful affair of last evening for the guests, who included relatives and a few intimate friends. Carnations in red and white decorated the table and a birthday cake was also an attractive feature. Several games of Five Hundred were played after the dinner, with head prizes going to Mrs. Grover Hoberg and Fred Hoberg and consolation prizes to Mrs. Louis Boers and Bert Boers.

"The proof of the pudding lies in the eating," but the success of the pudding lies in the accuracy with which it is mixed. Sometimes a cook seems to work on the theory that if a little is good, more will be better. She should remember that "enough is enough," and too much is quite a plenty.

In baking a cake if the rule is one-half cup of butter and two of flour, more butter will make a cake that is heavy, unless flour be added in proportion. If heaping cupfuls of flour are used the cake will have a broken top and be dry and of coarse texture.

A recipe is a rule and should be used as carefully and intelligently as any rule in arithmetic.

My Own Recipes.

Winter beets are apt to require so many hours of cooking before they are tender enough to serve that if fuel is an item to be considered there is no economy in using the stored vegetable. There are several brands of canned beets that are delicious and mean instant preparation. Heat in a double boiler with sugar, butter and salt and pepper heated into them these small, tender beets come near the new beets as is possible for a canned vegetable.

ANCESTORS.

H. G. Wells, novelist, has started a new work, not a novel which he calls an "Outline of History."

His aim is to give readers a clear idea of themselves, not as members of groups, separate races or nations, but as fellow humans in a great adventure of world history.

He says this idea is a necessary basis of permanent peace, and that it peculiarly is necessary now that science has narrowed distance and has brought all nations and people into close contact.

Wells' history begins when "the sun was a spinning, flaring mass of matter, not yet concentrated into a compact center of light and heat, and a series of fragments which detached themselves from it became planets. Our earth is one of these planets."

As to the climatic future of the earth, he says:

"Our world today seems to be emerging with fluctuations from a prolonged phase of adversity and extreme conditions. Half a million years ahead it may be a winterless world with trees and vegetation even in the polar circles. At present we have no certainty in such a forecast, but later on, as knowledge increases, it may be possible to reckon with more precision, so that our race will make its plans thousands of years ahead to meet the coming changes."

The race he refers to is the human race. It was only a few years ago that ordinary folk accustomed themselves to the idea that men and monkeys are developed from a common ancestor. But the organ grinder's monkey is like a brother compared to the original ancestor of man described by Wells.

The first ancestors of man, as distinct from reptiles and other creatures of the primal ooze, he says, seems to have been all "obscure little beasts of the size of mice and rats."

Wells, to find this original of all mammals, goes back hundreds of millions of years.

THE GOLDEN FLEECE

The allies' desire for the grain of southern Russia has its parallel in the quest of the golden fleece at the beginning of Europe's known history. So short is the time that separates us from the mythological age of the human race.

In the generation which preceded the siege of ancient Troy, Jason and his fellow-heroes of Greece set out for the land of Colchis to seize the golden fleece. Their ship was the Argo, the largest vessel that Greece had ever built, and the super-dreadnought of her day. The arbonauts included Hercules, Theseus, Castor and Pollux, more powerful in their time than the guns of the heaviest battleships in ours.

Colchis was at the eastern end of the Black Sea, called by the Greeks the "Stranger-less Sea" because no Greek had entered its waters and lived. Colchis was a land of dragons and dark mystery. We call it in part, the Caucasus, still a land of dark mystery, with the Bolshevik replacing the dragons.

The land of Colchis and its vicinage cling obstinately to their treasures. Jason and his followers had to perform prodigious feats before success rewarded them. So, the modern argonauts are yet baffled while the Bolshevik show their teeth.

BUDGET?

The Senate has got as far as a sub-committee agreement on a proposed bill for a national budget. Senator McCormick is responsible for it. It makes the secretary of the treasury in effect a "minister of finance," with full authority under the president to review all items of all departments and full responsibility for all items passed on to Congress for appropriations. It would take from the treasury—very sensibly—all side lines, such as the Public Health Service, the Coast Guard, the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and similar bureaus, which have no connection with money-raising and spending activities.

It is proposed to create under the secretary of the treasury a Budget Bureau with a commissioner at the head, whose duty it will be to co-ordinate the work of providing sources of revenue to conform to the budget requirements; to investigate waste and duplication in the government departments, recommend changes, provide rules under which money shall be spent and generally see that the budget is adhered to. The bill thoughtfully excepts Congress from the necessity of holding down expense! Nevertheless it is a good start in the right direction.

The United States is the only nation in the world of any consequence that runs its finances haphazard. It is the only one where spending has no relation to income. It will be hard work to convince pork-barrel committees and log-rolling congressmen that budget legislation is desirable, but Uncle Sam has got to the point where he can no longer afford to spend recklessly without regard to income. Budget legislation has become a necessity. The Republicans promised it as part of their platform in the last congressional elections. The country is waiting for the fulfillment of that promise.

The reason the allies grant Turkey a measure of self-determination is because if they didn't India would be sore enough to demand self-determination.

The best safeguard of popular government is the established privilege of expressing one's opinion about it.

Opinions differ concerning the meaning of Americanism; the politician thinks it means a short cut to office.

Bank robbers in Germany get by with the claim that they represent the allies. A guilty conscience makes an easy victim.

Every politician would be glad to make compulsory military training an issue if the other party would take the affirmative.

People in Petrograd are consuming food not meant for humans. They are also using theories not meant for humans.

It may be that the young Turks will start another war. But the old birds have learned a thing or two.

Many years will pass before Europe stops thinking up nice little schemes to persuade Uncle Sam to carry its financial burden.

JUST JOKING
A REGULAR MAN

A farm hand who had worked every day in the week from dawn till late at night, finishing the chores by lantern light, went to the farmer at the end of the month and said: "I'm going to quit. You promised me a steady job of work."

"Well, haven't you got one?" was the astonished reply.

"No," said the worker. "There are three or four hours every night I don't have anything to do except fool away my time sleeping."—Buffalo Times.

IGNORANCE IS BLISS

First Henpeck—Ain't these wives the limit? We husbands don't know anything at all and our wives know everything.

Second Henpeck—Nope; there's one thing my wife admits she doesn't know.

"What on earth is that?"

"Why she married me!"—Judge.

I looked at a squirrel
in the whirl
of the wheel of his cage.
And he showed me the act and the fact of our partisan age.
For he entered his wheel and he cried, as he ran,
"I'm for progress forever! I'm leading the van!
It is fatal for men to be calm and contented.
We've got to keep moving, or else we're demented.
So forward forever!" he panted and ran
And he finished, exhausted, just where he began.
Next day, with his confidence wholly unshaken
He said, "It is true I was slightly mistaken.
My intent was all right, but the way I was headed
In a safe and sane squirrel was a thing to be dreaded.
So he got in and ran (on the very same track)
But this time he turned the wheel endlessly back!
"Safe and sane! safe and sane!" he proclaimed as he ran,
But he stirred not a jot from the place he began.
I laughed at the squirrel and his lack of acumen;
I laugh at him still, he's so funny human.
Turning this way and that just one thing we have proved
We have run both directions and yet haven't moved!
And we'll never "get anywhere" unless we are free.
With our paws on the ground or our claws in the tree.
For friend, you're the squirrel
in the whirl
and you've no right to rage,
As long as you're panned to the end
in your partisan cage!

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

THE HUNGRY WHALE

The twins heard a great flapping in the bushes beside the road. So they ran to see what it could be.

They were getting accustomed to all sorts of queer things in Topsy Turkey Land, but what they saw now was the queerest of all—a great whale wobbling along and spouting a great fountain of water from his head. He was flipping his tail and hitching along on his side in a very curious manner.

"It's very hard swimming on dry land," he explained. "But they don't have peppermint creams in the sea. And how I do love them!"

"Peppermint creams," cried Nick. "Why, it says in my reader that whales eat little fishes. It's on page six."

"I know," answered the whale. "That's all very true. But just because you eat beefsteak, doesn't say you don't like vanilla ice cream does it? Once a sailor dropped a peppermint cream overboard and I got it. It was so delicious I haven't cared for anything else since. But I can't find any. Please excuse me while I cry." And the whale blew another big spout of water from the top of his head. "You see," he said, "my eyes are too small to cry all the tears I feel like crying. And he spouted again.

All this time Nancy was searching in her pocket. Suddenly she held up a beautiful peppermint cream.

"Here, Mr. Whale, you may have this," she said laying it on the ground.

"Oh thank you!" smiled the whale, showing all his teeth. "This is the happiest moment of my life." And he licked his lips so loudly it sounded like a thunder storm. "Do you come this way often?"

"We may be back," answered Nancy, "but we're hunting for our lost monkey now. Please tell us if you see him."

And the whale promised.

Confessions of a Bride

(Copyright 1920, by The Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Strong arms kept me from struggling. Little did my captor guess that his vice-like grip was unnecessary. My own horror of tramping on the body of my husband, fallen at my feet, there in the dark, kept me from resisting. Not a moan came from Bob's lips to tell me that he still lived; not a movement of hand or foot disturbed the stillness of the cave.

The place was as black as a sealed tomb, and yet I knew that it was not Don Manuel, the bandit, who had seized me. It was Hamilton Certeis!

For a single moment my distress about Bob number my brain, but at length, after what seemed an hour of awful quiet, I realized, perfectly that Certeis and Don Manuel had escaped gauding and capture by climbing the rope ladder in the natural chimney in the rock!

I had seen Morrison investigate that chimney. He had turned a flashlight up its interior, but he hadn't discovered the escaped men. It was probable, I thought, that there were upper cells, or a second story of galleries in the rock above the bandit's cave and there the two spies lurked waiting for an opportunity to accomplish a dastardly revenge.

They had seized the chance when Bob and I were telling our love in a kiss. Our love had destroyed us just as we seemed to be united for permanent happiness! Our happiness had been snatched from us just as it was perfected!

I pushed Hamilton Certeis away from me with all my strength and then gasped

"Please—please—turn on the lights."

The lights came on—I saw Don Manuel at the switch. Certeis' arms relaxed a little. I did not cast a grand glance of defiance at either man, as an indignant captive maid is supposed to do. I simply slumped to the ground and pulled Bob's head up to the level of my heart. His eyes were closed. His features were set in horrible stiff white folds.

"You've killed him!" I sobbed. "He is dead!"

At that Dr. Certeis became the cold man of science. He knelt by the side of my husband and proceeded to examine the case before him.

"He is not dead," he said at last. "I am sure he will not die. Please—I beg you to believe me, Jeanne! Oh, do not cry so!"

"Get him out of this stupor," I sobbed.

"I will—at once!" Certeis replied. "You know why—you know there is nothing I will not do for you, Jeanne," he said. His glance held mine. His magnificent blue eyes were strangely melancholy.

"Nothing—you will not do for me?" I flashed back at him.

"Nothing—except restoring you to your husband!"

There was a chest in the cave amply stocked with the finest surgical and medical supplies. For half an hour Certeis worked over Bob, I and Don Manuel helping him and I chilled with despair before restoratives produced any improvement in my husband's condition.

At the first sign of returning animation, Don Manuel removed Bob's gun from his pocket. I shrugged my shoulders, but I knew that it was wise of the Spaniard to take no risks. At length Bob's eyelids quivered and he struggled to raise himself on one elbow—and then to my horror—Don Manuel slipped a pair of handcuffs on my husband's wrists and tied a gag across his lips.

"Of course we'll leave the man here—when we go?" he said to Certeis.

"Alone? Sick? In this horrible place? Are you, Don Manuel, not a human being—but a fiend?" I screamed.

My cry aroused Bob to a realization of what was going on about him. He comprehended all that had happened in a glance.

"Jeanne! My love!" he called softly. I sat down on the cot upon which they had placed him and covered his manacled wrists with my poor cold hands.

Uncle Sam^{M.D.}

"UNCLE SAM, M. D., will answer questions of general interest relating to hygiene, sanitation and the prevention of disease. Address: INFORMATION EDITOR, U. S. Public Health Service, WASHINGTON, D. C."

DISEASES AND SEASONS.

There seems to be a connection between season and the prevalence of certain diseases. Just how much climatic conditions have to do with this is a debatable question, but it is a fact that, beginning early in autumn, whooping-cough increases as the season advances.

Possibly the cold weather increases the flow of the secretions from the nose and mouth, and since these are the carrying agents of the germ of whooping-cough, there is consequently an added opportunity for the disease.

Whooping-cough, mumps, measles, German measles and chicken-pox are with us so constantly that we have become accustomed to them and now regard them as the almost inevitable accompaniment of childhood. Many a mother has exposed her child to these diseases, firm in the belief that she was performing a good act and in ignorance of the danger in which she placed the life of one whom she loved. Yet it is safe to say that these common diseases not only take a heavy toll of the children of our land directly, but that they are also followed by results which may cripple the child or shorten its life.

Of all the deaths registered in the United States during recent years, nearly one-third occurred in children under 15 years of age; nearly 20 per cent was among children under one year of age, and almost 25 per cent in children under two years of age. Aside from the deaths which occurred from dietetic causes during this period, the common infectious and contagious diseases were responsible for this high mortality, and among the latter whooping-cough was charged with a large proportion of deaths. Therefore beware of whooping-cough, especially in young children.

ANSWERED.

Q—Would you advise my taking the inhalation treatment for tuberculosis described in the enclosed advertising pamphlets?

A—There is as yet no specific cure for tuberculosis, and the chief reliance is fresh air, good food, rest and freedom from care and worry. If you will send me your name and address I will send you some helpful pamphlets on tuberculosis. Be sure to place yourself under the care of a good physician, or if you cannot afford a private physician go to your local health officer.

COMES BACK FROM HELL WITH BOTTLED SPIRIT

So the Fakir Told His Patients

BY MAUBERT ST. GEORGES.

Inland China still is the daughter of error and the mother of superstition. Accustomed from childhood to hear and see practised everlasting superstitions, the Chinaman has become the most credulous being on earth. Naturally as a result there are thousands who desire to take advantage of this and the country is overrun with bonzes, magicians and quack doctors. While I was in a little village not far from Lan-Chow, I became indirectly mixed up with one of these.

I had been in this place a couple of days when I noticed my fever thermometer was missing.

The quack doctor gravely asserted that his soul had left his body and taken a trip to the mysterious regions of Buddhist hell, "Yenwang." And the credulous natives swallowed it whole, especially when he showed them what he had brought back. For he was now possessor of a "yin-fa," a new art wherewith to cure people. He had now a spirit bottled up which if they would put it into their mouth, would speak with their soul and thus cure them.

My servant, though he had traveled a good deal, was by no means exempt from Chinese superstition, and having heard about the wonderful man, went to pay him a visit. Imagine his astonishment on recognizing my thermometer as the new diviner of diseases.

He immediately accused the worthy doctor of theft. There was a great outcry, but eventually the thing was brought up for the judges to decide, and he ordered that the matter be put to the test of "Lao you fan-tze."

But the doctor objected, saying that his honesty was attacked and that the test was not severe enough. He desired the ordeal of "Tou-tcheu." Though this is held the graver ordeal, it was obvious why the man chose it. The first consists of snatching a pellet of dough from boiling oil without marking your fingers.

The second meant going before the idol of the god Tchong-hoang and making an oath, accompanied by imposing features, of absolute innocence. Chinamen are convinced that perjury is always punished. So our friend went to the temple and burnt incense before the idol. Then with a firm and solemn voice he proclaimed his innocence, begging if he were lying that his arms might be broken, his legs withered, that he might become deaf and dumb and blind, that his wife and children might die and so on and so on.

GLAD SHE TOOK FRIEND'S ADVICE

Mrs. Messick Has New Strength Life and Energy Since Taking Tanlac.

"I just cannot say enough in praise of Tanlac for the way it has given me new life, strength and energy," was the statement made a few days ago by Mrs. George Messick of Dallas City, Ill., when she called at Henry's drug store in Burlington, Iowa.

"When I began taking Tanlac I had practically lost my appetite and I suffered so bad from stomach trouble that the little I did eat disagreed with me," continued Mrs. Messick. "I was nervous and restless and at night I could not sleep well. I was losing weight constantly and I was so run-down generally that it looked like I had lost all the strength and animation I ever had."

"I started taking Tanlac on the advice of a friend and now after finishing four bottles I am feeling just like a new woman. I have a fine appetite and can eat anything I want without suffering any bad effects at all. My nerves don't give me any more trouble and I can sleep sound all night long."

THE WOMAN WHO LOVED--AND EARNED

CALLERS. CHAPTER 11.

Robert ordered the simplest sort of a dinner. I, perforce, did the same. When the check came he paid it, but offered no objection after we reached home when I gave him my share.

"I wish you wouldn't act this way, Robert," I said. "You know that I am willing to put all we have in a common fund. If you earned more than I did I wouldn't feel as you do."

"No--a woman wouldn't."

"I can't see any difference."

"Well, I can. It is no use talking of it, Gerry. I mean just what I say. Mean it for all time. I have despised myself more than you have despised me. I know that I haven't paid even my half of the expenses for some time. But now we'll do it alone. I can at least feed myself, and pay for my bed."

Robert spoke so bitterly that the tears came into my eyes. I brushed them away, so he would not see them. But I pretended to be busy and left the room. I couldn't trust myself to talk any more just then.

I had scarcely returned to him when I heard voices in the hall, and then a tap on our door.

"Come in," I called, thinking it was the maid. To my surprise it was Mary Ryan and Gardner Kenyon.

"Caught you, lazy bones!" Mary exclaimed as Robert jumped up to greet them. "The idea of lying down at 8 o'clock!"

"I know it seems ridiculous, Mary, but my social duties are so tiring," Robert replied, jocularly.

"We thought you might take pity on us and play bridge," Mary said after we had greeted Gardner. "Mr. Kenyon came to call, and there wasn't a blessed thing we could do but sit and look at each other, so I suggested we come over here."

"What's the matter with you, Mary? Lost your gift of gab?" Robert queried.

"No, Robert, only laid it away for a while until I can gab, as you call it, more correct." She flushed as she made the honest confession.

"Oh, that's it! Well, I'll get the table and we'll play. You'll be my partner, and I'll forgive you if you don't talk."

"He'd not forgive you if you did! I broke in. Bob was a crank when he played cards. He played all games well, and had no patience with anyone who did not pay attention to the game."

"Oh, Robert and I always get along," Mary replied as we took our places.

It was the first time I had seen Gardner since I had gotten him the invitation to Betty Weed's party. At first I felt a little embarrassed. I knew, and he knew, that we were becoming interested in each other before he met Mary. And because she never dreamed of such a thing, she naively allowed me to know that he had been with her a good deal since then.

I played badly--so badly that Robert spoke of it several times. I could not fix my thoughts upon the game. I knew Mary had come over purposely to help me keep Robert contented for the evening. I knew also that he had been very little disposed to talk or exert himself in any way, and that he welcomed the game as a relief.

It hurt me to think this--to know that he had come to a place where he cared nothing about chatting with me. It had been a long time since we had had any of our happy evenings together, longer than I cared to think. He had spent many of them away from me of late, and when at home had been silent if not morose. So instead of playing my best, I played my worst because my mind was upon him.

"Ten o'clock, Gardner. We must go after this rubber," Mary said as the clock struck. She had called him 'Gardner' so naturally that it bespoke practice. Robert was right. They were becoming very friendly.

She and Robert won it, and altho I urged them to stay and let me get them something to eat they refused. Mary pleading she must get home.

"Can't you see they want a few minutes alone more than they want cats?" Robert growled.

"Judging by yourself, dear?" "Perhaps."

His tone as he spoke the word was so peculiar it set me thinking. Did he mean that he cared nothing about being alone with me any more?

London-- "It's not so, that I kissed Georges on the lips," this with a pout and a terrible stamp of the foot.

"I kissed him on the cheeks--yes, both of them of course--and OH! it was a wonderful moment!"

Miss Mary Marsh Allen, British film actress and an old friend of Carpentier's, acknowledged that she is the girl who rushed up to the ring side a minute after Beckett fell, and--er, did it.

"I am not French, either. That's wrong," she said. "I am of Italian and Irish blood. But I have known Georges for a long time."

"I had not seen him for five years until the night of the fight."

"I clutched his arm in both my hands and cried: 'Georges, I wish you luck!' He smiled and said, 'Merci, ma chere.'"

"When Beckett fell you would have thought the Stadium was coming down. My heart was jumping and I jumped up and started for the ringside. George Graves said: 'Have you gone mad, Mary?'"

"I told him 'Not come on and help me through.'"

"They shoved me through, and then some men hoisted me up and the next instant I felt Georges' gloved hands behind my neck and we kissed. I forgot there was anyone else around. Then suddenly I knew they were cheering."

"But it wasn't on the lips--both of us kissed each other on both cheeks." So there.

Secret of British Smoke Screen Given

By Associated Press Leased Wire

London, Feb. 9.--(By Mail)--The secret of the smoke screens used with such great success by the British Navy in the raids on Ostend and Zeebrugge is definitely disclosed. They were produced from an acid, which has to be burned in the presence of a sufficient amount of water vapor, otherwise the smoke produced, even over the sea, is liable to be somewhat thin on a dry day.

Commander Brock, who sacrificed his life in the assault on the German defenses at the Belgian ports devised the plan to feed the acid in a fine spray into the funnel of a destroyer, where the temperature was sufficient to vaporize the acid, and the water vapor present completed the formation of the cloud.

Can't Use Airplane to Hunt South Pole

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 27.--(By Mail)--An airplane will be of little service in attempting to reach the South Pole, in the opinion of Dr. Griffith Taylor, of the Australian Meteorological Bureau, who was formerly an Antarctic explorer. Dr. Taylor said he believed that the expedition to the South Pole to be conducted next summer by Dr. L. Cope would find it difficult to reach the South Pole by the air route. He said:

"Hurricanes blow for weeks in the Antarctic and can spring up in half an hour from nothing to 60 miles an hour. I do not think it possible that an airplane can rise above a blizzard. It can not stay up indefinitely and it can not descend."

Dr. Taylor is skeptical as to the mineral wealth of the Antarctic, for which Dr. Cope's expedition is especially to explore. Speaking from his own experience, he does not think there is anything of economic value on the coast of the Antarctic continent, and although coal is to be found inland, the extent of the deposits, he says, is uncertain and it is improbable on account of its remoteness that it can be mined within the next 50 years.

Rail Director in Plea for Greater Use for Big Canals

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 27.—Urging a thorough going experiment in the development of the inland waterways of the country, G. A. Tomlinson, director of the division of inland waterways of the railroad administration, in his annual report today to Director General Hines, declared that "a complete economic justification for these methods of transportation" would be shown.

Mr. Tomlinson summarized the operations under the railroad administration during 1919 on the New York barge canal, the Delaware and Raritan Canal, the lower Mississippi between St. Louis and New Orleans, on the Warrior River in Alabama and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

On the lower Mississippi river, the report put the cost of handling freight at from 95 cents to $1 a ton, the defective character of existing facilities and equipment necessitating expenditures of more than $65,000.
The total local movement both northbound and southbound amounted to 95,325 tons on which the average charges amount to $3.45 a ton.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. For 17 years he used these tablets (a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil) in his private practice with great success.
They do all the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. No pains, no griping, no injury to the gums or danger from acid foods—yet they stimulate the liver and bowels.
Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
when you feel "lumpy" and "heavy."
Note how they clear clouded brain and perk up the spirits. 10c and 25c a box

Head of Chicago Federal Reserve Bank Makes Statement.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—There is "small hope for normal conditions until production is increased and extravagance checked," W. A. Heath, chairman of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank and Federal Reserve Agent declared in his annual report to the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, made public today.

"The transition from a war toward a peace footing has been attended so far with little business disturbance," the report says. "All through the year, however, there has been resistance to attempts to readjust prices and wages from a wartime level to prewar normal. Higher wages and high prices of materials call for the use of more money and credit in the conduct of business.

"There is little in the figures of 1919 which give hope for an immediate return to normal conditions until production begins to overtake consumption and savings are accumulated to take the place of wealth lost by waste and extravagance and to increase the available supply of capital, of which the world is so greatly in need.

"While world wide conditions are closely related with those of the middle west it is not easy to discover any direct relation of them to the attitude of the people of this section as indicated by their disposition to indulge in extravagant living, to disregard the necessity of thrift, the imperative need for increased production and the conservation of credit."

Miss Ruth Kerz is reported ill of scarlet fever.

GOVT. NOT TO INTERFERE IN RAIL STRIKES

However French Premier Tries to Get Men Together.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Paris, Feb. 27.—Governmental intervention in disciplinary measures taken by the Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean railway company towards its employees is opposed by Premier Millerand who arrived here yesterday and at once plunged into consideration of the strike situation confronting the country.

Delegates of railway workmen's unions conferred with the Premier yesterday afternoon relative to some action which would bring about a reconsideration of the dismissal of a workman named Campanaud, which caused the walkout of men of the Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean line but the best Mr. Millerand could do was to advise the men to submit their case to arbitration.

Minister of Works Le Trouquard said yesterday in discussing the situation: "The government cannot interfere in a question of discipline but as evidence of the spirit of conciliation animating it is prepared to examine the possibility of introducing in a future statute for railroad workers clauses regulating absences from duty."

It has been alleged Campanaud was discharged by the railroad company for having absented himself from duty to attend a union meeting.

AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL
BY GENE AHERN

Star scientists are busy burning out the midnight incandescents trying to do up a way of hitting the moon's double chin, or double chinning with Mars, that's out of the interrogation now, like an extra pair of pants with a new suit of labels and buttons. Can't even bust through the busy signal as it is to give central the wrong number. Can't figure out what swatting the moon for ten stars has to do with the 18th amendment. There's only one moon now. Unless they want to slam a full moon. Or maybe the man in the moon has a cellar full of hic-coughs. Then that's a nose of another hue. One of the star snoopers is cranking up a 100 h. p. rocket to smack the moon. Has it loaded with enough photographers' flashlight powder to snap 6,000 old-style banquets with half of 'em under the table, to go off when it hits the moon. The result will be the same as holding a match in front of a searchlight. Only way to hit the moon with that rocket is to tie a dozen eggs on the front of it, or let a landlaid set it off.

Do You Know Why Red Blooded Men Are Successful?

There are just two kinds of men—the weak, thin blooded, half sick, discouraged kind, who lack ambition, strength and vitality—and the red-blooded, ambitious, self-reliant men—vigorous and successful.

The strong, red-blooded, healthy men who can stand the strain of hard work, and carry heavy responsibilities, without worry or fear, are the men who succeed.

Do you know why they are red blooded, full of energy and vigor? Do you know why they succeed?

The blood supplies the material necessary for nourishing every tissue, nerve, bone, muscle and fluid in the body, and for carrying on every process of life.

There are over three million red blood corpuscles in one drop of blood, and these red blood corpuscles carry the iron in the blood. Iron attracts oxygen, just as a magnet attracts steel. Without oxygen you cannot live. It vitalizes the blood and makes it red, rich and healthy. That's why red blooded men are strong, energetic, and successful. Their blood is vitalized with life-giving oxygen, and liberally supplied with the iron and cell-salts that nature must have to maintain health.

REOLO produces a rapid increase in the number of red blood cells and plasma of the blood. It increases the supply of oxygen in the blood, stimulates the nervous system, and accelerates the circulation, sending through the entire body a stream of rich, vitalized blood, abundantly supplied with oxygen, iron and the cell-salts that nourish and rebuild the cells.

Start the REOLO systematic treatment today and you will be delighted with the steady improvement in your health.

Going to London?
Reserve Your Room

London, Feb. 9.—(By Mail).—Americans who contemplate coming to England this spring or summer, and Londoners expect there will be thousands of them, should be definitely assured before leaving that hotel accommodations have been arranged, say the hotel managers. Otherwise it is probable they may be unable to find a place to stay, particularly in London.

It will be difficult for London to handle a great influx of people this summer, say the managers, and they expect many disappointments among Americans who even attempt to arrange accommodations some time ahead of arrival. The better hotels of the city can not find room for more than 4,000 at one time, they are full now and many people have engaged rooms months ahead.

Some Englishmen who have just returned from the United States estimate that 1,000,000 Americans will attempt to see England en route to the battlefields of France this summer. More conservative observers, however, place the number far below that.

Ogle Co. Stockmen to Meet Jap Buyer

Oregon, Ill.—A representative of the Japanese government will come to Oregon early in April to buy graded dairy cattle, according to information received here this week. One of the stock raisers of this vicinity who attended the Dairy Show in Chicago happened to give his card to a Japanese who appeared much interested in Holstein cattle. It has developed that he had been sent to this country by his government to buy cattle of this type to stock 3,000 farms. There are now only about 500 Holstein cattle in Japan.

"Inability" Bill is Being Argued

Washington, Feb. 26.—What constitutes "inability" of a president of the United States to perform the duties of his office and how this question may be determined was discussed today from all angles by the house judiciary committee in opening hearings on four measures relating to Mode of Procedure.

Emphatic objection was expressed by members of the committee to certain provisions of a bill offered by Representative Madden, republican, Illinois, which would give the cabinet power to declare the president "unfit" after being ill or absent from the country six weeks. Mr. Madden said he was trying to suggest a short way out of the difficulty, adding that the cabinet naturally in harmony and sympathy with a president, would not be inclined to do violence to his rights.

"Why does your bill fix March 4 as the date it is to take effect?" asked Representative Morgan, republican, Oklahoma.

"Simply to take the present president out of the discussion," Mr. Madden replied. "I do not want President Wilson to think that this legislation is aimed at him."

Representative Husted, republican, New York, thought the plan gave "tremendously wide discretion to the cabinet," which amounted to absolute power over the president.

Basic Law Framers May Do More Work

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 26.—Constitutional convention delegates may have the opportunity of voting on the proposition of a five day week for themselves, if a resolution of delegate Lewis A. Jarman of Rushville is returned from the rules committee in the form in which he presented it today.

Mr. Jarman introduced his resolution to amend the rules so that the convention will have five working days each week Saturday and Sunday being the only days left for basic law legislators. Prompt consideration of the resolution is expected by the rules committee to which the resolution was referred. Since convening last January 6 the convention has held no Monday sessions and very few Friday sessions.

The convention clerks were swamped again today with a flood of proposals, seventy propositions being offered by delegates during the morning session. They covered a wide range of subjects.
